

For Parents

This week your child has been continuing to explore the importance of story. This week they heard two different stories of love; one about the love of a parent and child for each other and the second, a traditional Irish story about the love of a good man for the tiniest of creatures. You might like to pray or reflect with your child on the love each of you has for the other and, where appropriate from the perspective of your belief or faith tradition, the divine love for the planet.

Guess how much I love you
